

In the interest of balanced media coverage on public airwaves, I think that the FCC should stop the plans of Sinclair to broadcast "Stolen Honor." Otherwise, a program which depicted Bush in a critical light or something that was more Pro-Kerry (e.g., "Going Upriver") could be aired as long as it was at a similar timeslot and before the election. This would make for a more informed and educated viewing audience and would not exploit the use of public airwaves to run a smear campaign.
